

WEEK 9&10

Chengdu American Center

Internship Program

During the past few weeks, students from our internship program assisted their supervisors in organizing forums and meetings. The Center has been receiving feedback from the internship partners on our students' overall strengths and improvements, as well as a review of each individual student.

Students from the World Civilization and Introduction to Philosophy classes

Prof. Zhou introducing Shu Culture

A China-Germany forum that three internship students helped to organize

Dingfeng Xu (second to the right, interning at a local finance company) at an enterprise salon forum

Field Trip to Du Fu Thatched Cottage Museum

On November 22, the World Civilization and Introduction to Philosophy classes paid a visit to Du Fu Thatched Cottage Museum, the former residence of the great poet Du Fu from the Tang Dynasty. Led by Prof. Zhou, the students had the opportunity to appreciate the charm of Ancient Sichuan's Shu culture, and to enjoy the museum and natural beauty of the parks.

Voice From Internship Partner

"The quality of work and the responses from the interns have been exceeding expectations. They finish their assignments on time and can detect and solve problems. My suggestion for them is to think more extensively, cultivate their leadership capabilities, and accumulate more practical experiences."

-- Valerie, Director of International Trade, SUNAR Living (Chengdu) Co., LTD

Student Voice

"I am no stranger to Du Fu Thatched Cottage. But this time I had a completely different experience with my class. The professor told us a lot of stories behind the cottage and introduced us to the history and culture of Sichuan. Those are things we couldn't learn in class. It was a very rewarding field trip! I liked it!"

-- Xiaoye Chen, Public Relations Major, Junior

Thanksgiving Celebration

It is an annual event to celebrate Thanksgiving at the G-MEO Chengdu American Center. Last Friday Night, the G-MEO staff, faculty and students gathered together to enjoy some delicious food, play games and make new friends. Mahjong, board games, chess brought lots of joy to every attendee.

*No Mahjong,
No Party*

UNO! UNO!

Student Voice

"My internship is rich and helpful. The assignments are not only related to my major, but also to marketing and management. I find they are quite challenging and they helped me realize that I still have a lot to learn in the workplace."

-- Xinran Liu, Business Administration Major, Junior

"With the guidance of a new supervisor, I have learned a lot and been involved in substantive projects about the company's operation. Thanks to Win Power for giving me this opportunity."

-- Dingfeng Xu, Economics Major, Senior

Happy Thanksgiving!

Yum turkey!

Thankful for all the great food!

Student Voice

"The Thanksgiving Party last week surprised me. I didn't expect G-MEO to put so much effort and investment into this activity. Thanksgiving is a very important holiday in the United States. Families gather at long tables to share food, life and joy. G-MEO also provided us with such a valuable opportunity to get together with other students and teachers. The buffet was great, with a wide variety of dishes, and we shared a delicious turkey as a nod to tradition. At the same time, this activity also let me and the other students get to know each other more. We are all part of the G-MEO family."

-- Zheqi Zhang, Business Administration Major, Senior

International chess and Chinese chess

Exciting Board Game