

WEEK 3

Chengdu American Center in Collaboration with Fairleigh Dickinson University

Course Diagnosis & Mid-term Examination

During the second and third weeks, course diagnosis surveys were sent out to the students to collect their comments and feedback on the faculty and courses. Students' view and opinions are always valuable for us to improve the academic quality. Mid-term examinations were also carried out in the third week. Various ways such as closed-book tests, presentations, short-essays were used to check on students' achievements in the first half of the program.

U.S. History I class taught by Prof. Yi Zhou taking midterm examination

Yadi Lu (American University) giving a presentation

Operations Management class taking midterm examination

Students playing cards at the house party

House Party

After mid-terms, we hosted a house party for students to relax and have fun. At the party, the students got to play mahjong, sing karaoke, play cards and video games. Pizza, coffee and bubble tea were also provided. We are glad to see our students take the opportunity to relax from intensive summer courses.

Karaoke and Mahjong

Lots of excitement at the role play

Faculty Voice

"I had the privilege of teaching the summer course on Calculus III in G-MEO, and I must congratulate my students for their remarkable dedication and enthusiasm. Their positive attitudes and commitment to learning made every class session a positive and rewarding experience. Additionally, the staff's support and resources were invaluable in facilitating a smooth and effective teaching experience. I am grateful for the opportunity to be part of this rewarding teaching experience and to witness the positive impact it has had on both the students and the organization."

--Dr. Juan Manuel Sanchez, Professor of Calculus III

Role Play Detective Game

On the third weekend, a group of our students went to a role play detective shop. At the game, the students were assigned to different roles and compete with each other. Under a well-written script and led by the host, the players tried to align with others while hiding their real intentions during the game. It is really a game of wit and wisdom. The students played for 8 hours from afternoon until midnight, and had lots of fun.

Student Voice

"The G-MEO program offered me an opportunity to experience the rich campus life in China. I enjoyed both the classes and the extracurricular activities. And I got to know more classmates and friends. Chengdu is a city where you can find peace and get relaxed. Not just the food here but the folklore make this city attractive to people from home and abroad."

--Qianyu Liu, Finance major, Junior, American University